Subject: Marketing women as sexual objects?

Hello!

My name is Trip Reynolds. Among other things, I'm a track and field official.

Briefly, in the wake of a successful $380 million litigation against USA Gymnastics, the U.S. Olympic and Paralympic Committee and their insurers for the actions of former USA Gymnastics doctor Larry Nassar, I'm pursuing civil action against the NCAA and USATF for "establishing, promoting, and sustaining sexually hostile and discriminatory working conditions" that cause me, and others, to exist as perpetual victims of sexual harassment. Specifically, certain clothing worn by female athletes is blatantly sexist, does not enhance performance, is overtly discriminatory, and should be discontinued. The immediate beneficiaries of my action should be organizations that promote positive images of women, such as the Women's Sports Foundation, National Organization for Women, etc.
